About the Festival

Friday, September 8 – Artist Workshop at 6pm

Saturday, September 9 – Festival Hours, 10 am to 6 pm

Sunday, September 10 – Festival Hours, 10 am to 6 pm

Back by popular demand, the Omaha Chalk Art Festival, an eye-popping addition to the city's arts and culture landscape, returns to Midtown Crossing on September 9 & 10, 2023. A weekend-long celebration of local and regional artists, as well as two professional chalk artists, will transform the sidewalk along Farnam Street in Midtown Crossing into a gallery of pastel chalk masterpieces. Visitors are invited to observe and admire as they stroll Farnam Street, enjoy each artistic drawing, food, drinks and browsing. Now in its fifth year in Omaha, the Chalk Art Festival concept is tremendously popular around the world – from Curtatone, Italy, to Denver, Colorado.

The Tradition

The chalk art event follows street painting traditions that originated in 16th century Renaissance Italy when artists began transforming pavement into canvas using chalk. The artists were called "madonnari," after their customary practice of creating chalk paintings of the Madonna. Historically, madonnari were known for their lives of travel and freedom, making their living from coins received from passers-by. With World War II came many hardships, greatly reducing the number of these artists. The art form was not officially brought back to life until 1972 when the small town of Grazie di Curtatone in Italy started the first international street painting competition. Today, artists worldwide are taking to the streets, bringing with them new ideas, techniques, and excitement for this ancient form of expression.
